Q: What pizzas have the best fresh ingredients?

A: Based on the reviews provided, it appears that the following pizzas stand out for having the best fresh ingredients:

1. The "White Album" pizza with ricotta, mozzarella, garlic, and spinach, which mentions that their cheese is creamy but not heavy, and the fresh garlic adds a perfect punch.
2. The seasonal spring offering, featuring asparagus, green garlic, and fresh peas, which praises its bright and delicious flavor.
3. The "Mediterranean" pizza, which highlights its briny olives, tangy feta, fresh tomatoes, and herb-infused olive oil.

These pizzas seem to emphasize the use of fresh ingredients, such as fresh tomatoes, garlic, asparagus, peas, ricotta cheese, and herbs.

Q: What makes a good pizza sauce?

A: Based on the provided reviews, it seems that a good pizza sauce should have several characteristics. Here are some common themes that emerge:

1. Herbs and spices: Many reviewers mention that a good pizza sauce should have a hint of herbs (e.g., basil), garlic, or other spices to add depth and complexity.
2. Freshness: Reviewers praise sauces made with hand-crushed tomatoes, which suggests that using fresh, high-quality ingredients is important.
3. Balance of sweetness and acidity: Some reviewers mention that the sauce was either too sweet (e.g., like ketchup) or lacking in acidity, which can make the sauce unbalanced and unpleasant.
4. Texture: The ideal texture for a pizza sauce seems to be a topic of debate. Some reviewers prefer a smooth sauce with small chunks of tomatoes, while others mention that a slightly chunky texture is better (e.g., the reviewer who praised the vodka sauce).
5. Quality of ingredients: Several reviewers emphasize the importance of using high-quality ingredients, such as properly crushed tomatoes and fresh mozzarella cheese.

Overall, it seems that a good pizza sauce should be made with fresh, high-quality ingredients, have a balanced flavor profile, and a texture that complements the other components of the pizza.
